Undergraduate Minor in City & Regional Planning
City and regional planning is a vibrant field that focuses on the future and quality of life in cities, towns, and regions. The City and Regional Planning minor ensures that students gain exposure to history, theory, or methods in city and regional planning. The minor requires a total of 12 credit hours. At least six hours must be at the 3000-level or higher.

Required minor courses (both required)
City & Regional Planning 2000 Introduction to City and Regional Planning, 3
City & Regional Planning 4597 The Global Environment in Planning, 3

Elective minor courses
Choose from any 2000, 3000, 4000, or 5000-level courses in the City and Regional Planning section. Some courses may have prerequisites or require instructor permission.

Note: City and Regional Planning 2110 will serve as an automatic substitution for City and Regional Planning 2000.